MUSIC CITY BOWL REMAINS IN PLAY FOR OLE MISS

Ole Miss became bowl eligible for the first time in three years with a 41-24 win against Mississippi State in the Egg Bowl. The Music City and BBVA Compass Bowls are the two most likely destinations for the Rebels, with bowl selections to be announced Sunday.

With its 41-24 win against Mississippi State this past Saturday, Ole Miss finished the regular season with a 6-6 record and awaits its postseason fate. The Franklin American Mortgage Music City Bowl in Nashville, Tenn. (Dec. 31, 11 a.m., ESPN) and the BBVA Compass Bowl in Birmingham, Ala. (Jan. 5, Noon, ESPN) have emerged as the two most likely destinations for the Rebels. Alabama (11-1), Georgia (11-1), Florida (11-1), LSU (10-2), Texas A&M (10-2) and South Carolina (10-2) are expected to accept bowl bids to the BCS National Championship Game, Allstate Sugar Bowl, Capital One Bowl, AT&T Cotton Bowl, Outback Bowl and Chick-fil-A Bowl, in some combination.

This leaves Ole Miss and two 8-4 teams – Vanderbilt and Mississippi State – as the most likely candidates for the TaxSlayer.com Gator Bowl (Jan. 1, 11 a.m., ESPN2), Music City Bowl and BBVA Compass Bowl, which has bowl priority over the AutoZone Liberty Bowl because the Liberty Bowl picked ahead of the BBVA Compass Bowl last year.

“Well, obviously, we’re in a position where we need to wait on the selections ahead of us,” Music City Bowl President/CEO Scott Ramsey said. “We anticipate having whoever the Gator Bowl doesn’t choose – probably between the two eight-win teams, I would imagine, Vanderbilt and Mississippi State. Other than that, Ole Miss and one of those two teams will be available for us to choose from at the time we get to select on Sunday.”

Ramsey said the Music City Bowl, like most other bowls and cities, have three primary goals for its matchup.

“One, we really want to fill up our city and our hotels,” he said. “We want people to come in and experience the city from a tourism standpoint. Out-of-town fans and length of stay is important. Secondly, we want to fill up the stadium. I think that creates energy for the players. I think it creates a great game day atmosphere. Obviously, it’s a positive statement

With the cold winter season drawing near, the Student Programming Board (SPB) is hosting its annual Grand Ole Christmas, starting at 6:30 tonight, to get students pumped up for the holiday season. The event is free, and refreshments will be provided.

“We are giving away free Papa John’s pizza, and we would like to encourage students to come dressed up in their Christmas attire and tacky Christmas sweaters,” said Alley Daily, co-director of special events for SPB. “It’s a

WALLACE WINS 2012 CONERLY TROPHY

JACKSON – Ole Miss quarterback Bo Wallace, fresh off of leading his Rebels to a 41-24 Egg Bowl victory over Mississippi State, won the C Spire Conerly Trophy award on Tuesday night as the Magnolia state’s top college football player in 2012.

Wallace, who has led the Rebels to a 6-6 record this year and their first bowl berth since 2009, passed for 2,843 yards with 19 touchdowns, ran for another 363 yards and eight touchdowns and scored a touchdown on a 25-yard pass reception while logging a cumulative 144.20 quarterback rating this year, one of the best in the SEC and among the top 40 in the nation.

Wallace received the trophy during a special awards program Tuesday night in Jackson at the Mississippi Sports Hall of Fame and Museum from master of ceremonies Rick Cleveland, MSHOF executive director, and Jim Richmond, vice president of Corporate Communications for C Spire Wireless, title sponsor of the award since 1998.

He edged out four other finalists – Mississippi State defensive back Johnathan Banks, Southern Miss defensive lineman Jamie Collins, Jackson State wide receiver Rico Richardson and Delta State offensive tackle Kendall Hunter. A panel of more than 50 media members across the state selected the finalists and the winner from among 10 nominees from each of Mississippi’s football-playing four year colleges.

COLUMN

Internet sales tax is a federal issue

BY TRENTON WINFORD
tgwinford@bellsouth.net

Rarely will you read a column of mine that advocates 1. An expansion of federal government power and 2. A tax increase. This one, however, does advocate these.

The Constitution grants Congress and the federal government the power to regulate interstate commerce. The vast majority of Internet purchases fit into the category of interstate commerce.

Currently, the Supreme Court’s 1992 decision exempts retailers from collecting sales tax if they do not have a physical presence in the state – a store, warehouse or office. This means that Walmart.com, which has a physical presence in all 50 states, must collect sales tax according to the state laws of the purchaser. However, Amazon.com, which does not have a physical presence in most states, does not have to collect sales tax in those states.

The Court’s primary reason for this decision is that the variety in state sales tax laws is too complicated to burden retailers with it. However, in the decision, the Court wrote that Congress has the authority to enact a policy that requires online retailers to collect sales taxes.

Since many online retailers do not have a physical presence in Mississippi, they have an advantage over local retailers in this state, especially since the state is mostly rural.

Now, the argument for an online sales tax usually hinges on online retailers collecting individual states’ sales taxes. It is certainly a valid argument and one most likely to be enacted into law, but why make a complicated policy when a simple one will suffice?

The federal government currently does not collect a sales tax of any kind. As such, since 45 states already have sales taxes, the common refrain for online sales tax supporters is to keep it at the state level.

When it comes to buying online, though, the federal government has the opportunity to centralize online sales taxes. Much of the federal government’s current tax collections are redirected to the states, and the online sales tax collections would be no different.

Today, an argument could be made that almost all commerce is interstate and therefore subject to Congress’ authority. Congress, however, has mostly chosen to let the states handle commerce themselves.

Online sales tax is an issue that the federal government should collect before the individual states, though, because it would be one simple policy that applied uniformly across all states. It would be easier on the consumer, easier on the retailer and easier on the government.

What is my policy solution? A 5 percent federal online sales tax collected by the online retailer and owed to the federal government, with 80 percent of online sales tax collections earmarked for distribution to the individual states.

In the end, whether online sales tax is collected by the individual states or by the federal government does not really matter, so long as policy is enacted that eliminates the major advantage that online retailers have over local retailers.

Last night the Graduate Student Council hosted a town hall meeting in the Overby Center for Southern Journalism and Politics auditorium to discuss the events of Nov. 6 on campus. The event was moderated by Director of Community Relations and Diversity Programs at the Poynter Institute Kenny Irby with panelists (from left to right) Dr. Susan Glisson, the Executive Director of the William Winter Institute for Racial Reconciliation; Kym Clark of Action News 5 Memphis; Kevin Cozart, President of the Graduate Student Council; Kimbrey Dandridge, ASB President; Emily Roland, Editor-in-Chief of The Daily Mississippian and Stewart Pirani, Newswatch Station Manager. Danny Blanton (far right), UM Media and Public Relations director, was called to join the panel to represent the administration later in the event. The meeting focused on the role of the media, racial reconciliation by keeping an open dialogue between students and the administration and maintaining individual integrity and accountability.

Chancellor Dan Jones and athletic director Ross Bjork are scheduled to speak during the tree lighting ceremony, and The University of Mississippi Gospel Choir, which won praise from actor Harry Belafonte during the 50 Years of Integration events, is scheduled to perform at the tree lighting.

After the tree lighting in the Circle, students, as well as locals, can walk over to the Union for pictures with Santa and ice skating in the food court. Skates will be provided, and the hockey team will also be introduced.

SPB director Will Yerger is approaching his fourth year participating in the Grand Ole Christmas event, and he said a lot has changed over the past few years.

“We actually used to do the Christmas tree lighting on separate dates until last year when we decided to merge the two events,” he said.

“Right after students leave the tree lighting they can go on over and enjoy the other festivities.”

Correction

In Tuesday’s edition of The Daily Mississippian, the names of the two students killed in the car accident last month were incorrectly stated. The names of the two students are Sarah and John Wheat.

“Obviously, we were happy to see Ole Miss win their game on Saturday and become the ninth bowl eligible team for the Southeastern Conference, which assured us of having an SEC team in our bowl, and we look forward to Saturday night and Sunday morning when the selection process is taking place and finding out who is coming to Birmingham,” BBVA Compass Bowl Executive Director Mark Meadows said. “We’re planning for any combination of teams to come in at this point. It’s out of our hands, as the selection above us will determine who comes to us. It’s usually, for us, come down to the final weekend every year, so this is nothing unusual for us.” As for possible opponents in the bowl game, Ramsey said the Music City Bowl is looking at Virginia Tech (6-6), North Carolina State (7-5) and Duke (6-6) for its ACC tie-in, based on who wins the ACC Championship Game.

The BBVA Compass Bowl has a tie-in with the Big East, which would likely be Syracuse (7-5), Connecticut (5-6) or Pittsburgh (5-6), if either the Huskies or Panthers win on Saturday to become bowl eligible. Meadows said the bowl is “in discussions and planning phases for contingency plan in case we don’t have a team to fill the other side.”

day’s Egg Bowl. Ole Miss athletic director Ross Bjork said he knew the fine would be handed down, and they were prepared to handle the situation inside the stadium Saturday night. “We could sense the energy and the burst of excitement that our fans were having in the second half,” Bjork said. “We anticipated that they would try to rush the field – the students and fans. So we made a conscious decision to do it as safe as possible and protect Mississippi State and the officials the best way we could and let our fans celebrate.” It was the first time Ole Miss had violated the policy since it was implemented in 2004. The policy imposes penalties for violations in football, men’s basketball and women’s basketball. A second offense within the next three years would result in a fine of $25,000, while each subsequent one would result in a $50,000 fine.

Kentucky hires FSU assistant Mark Stoops as coach

LEXINGTON, Ky. – Kentucky has found its new football coach.

The Wildcats announced Tuesday that they have hired Florida State defensive coordinator Mark Stoops to coach the Wildcats.

Stoops replaces Joker

Phillips, who was fired on Nov. 4. Phillips went 13-24 in three seasons at Kentucky. The Wildcats were 0-8 in the Southeastern Conference this year.

The 45-year-old Stoops will be introduced here at a news conference on Sunday. No. 13 Florida State (10-2) plays Georgia Tech Saturday in the Atlantic Coast Conference championship game.

Southern Miss fires Ellis Johnson

Southern Mississippi fired football coach Ellis Johnson Tuesday after one winless season. WWWirector Jeff

Hammond announced in a statement released by the school that Johnson would not return after a miserable 0-12 season that ended with a loss to Memphis on Saturday.

“At Southern Miss we expect to compete hard and succeed both in the classroom and on the field,” Hammond said. “This is not the exception. This is in fact the standard, the norm, our identity and who we are.”

The 60-year-old Johnson is due a $2.1 million buyout over the next three seasons.

The Big East moved quickly to replace Rutgers and braced for more possible departures, getting Tulane and East Carolina to agree to join the re-invented conference in 2014.

“I would go as far to say as this is a historic day for Tulane University ... the Big East is coming to the Big Easy,” school President Scott Cowen said Tuesday.

For the Lady Rebels, accomplishing their goals meant victory, even if by the slimmest of margins.

The Lady Rebels will return to action Thursday night against Lipscomb. This will be their fifth home game to start the season and their second of three games this week. Tip-off from Tad Smith Coliseum is set for 7 p.m.

The Lady Rebels improved to 3-1 on the young season Tuesday night, defeating Mississippi Valley State, 62-60. It was far from easy, however. The Lady Rebs led by 15 at one point and never trailed in the contest, but thanks to a surge by Delta Devilettes, it took a missed three-pointer at the buzzer by MVSU to give Ole Miss the win.

"One of the good things about sports is we celebrate wins," Coach Brett Frank said following the close win Tuesday night.

Junior forward Diara Moore led the way with 15 points, her fourth straight game in double figures. Junior guard Valencia McFarland tied her season high with 12. Junior forward Kenyotta Jenkins garnered her first start of the season in the place of sophomore forward Danielle McCray, who recorded her first double-double of the season with 11 points and 12 rebounds off the bench.

"I thought she had a greater sense of urgency tonight," Frank said of McCray.

For the Lady Rebels, Tuesday was their lowest point total in a game this season. They were 19-of-60 (31.7 percent) from the field and 1-of-18 (5.6 percent) from 3-point range. However, Ole Miss grabbed 20 offensive rebounds and tallied 20 second-chance points.

On the defensive end, the Lady Rebels came into the game giving up over 50 percent shooting from the floor. On Tuesday night, they allowed the Delta Devilettes to shoot just 23-of-67 (34.3 percent) from the floor.

"We set several goals for ourselves tonight," Frank said. "I think we had six goals, and we accomplished four of those goals. So that is progress moving in the right direction."

The goals that Frank says the team accomplished are: 20 or more offensive rebounds, win the rebound margin by at least 15 rebounds, keep the oppo-
